"GLOBAL ISSUES & THE DEVELOPING WORLD: THE ROLE OF MULTI-STAKEHOLDER PARTNERSHIPS"

Wednesday, February 18, 2009 12:00 NOON

Orfalea Center Seminar Room, 1005 Rob Gym

Alan Detheridge spent 30 years with the Royal Dutch Shell Group. He retired in 2007 as the Group's Vice President for External Affairs where, in that capacity, he liaised with home and host governments, non-governmental organizations, multi-lateral agencies and foundations. His particular interest was (and is still) the development of multi-stakeholder partnerships to tackle issues facing the developing world, particularly in Africa. With others, he was responsible for initiating several such partnerships - including:

- The Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative, launched by UK Prime Minister Tony Blair at the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development and endorsed by subsequent G8 Summits
- The Global Gas Flaring Reduction Initiative, again launched at the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development and endorsed by subsequent G8 Summits
- The development of the UNAIDS AIDS in Africa scenarios.

Alan is a fellow of the Lincoln Center for Ethics at Thunderbird School of Global Management and associate director of The Partnering Initiative, a global programme of the International Business Leaders Forum in association with Cambridge University.

He is on the boards of the Synergos Institute, Africare, Management Sciences for Health and the International Foundation for Education and Self Help, and he also serves on the advisory board of the Revenue Watch Institute. In 2006, Alan co-chaired the Salzburg Seminar on Public Private Partnerships in Development and served as a member of the UN Global Steering Committee on Universal Access to HIV Prevention, Treatment and Care.
